CASH DIVIDEND DIRECT CREDIT PROGRAM (CDDCP)*TERMS & CONDITIONS*Liabilities of parties in the event of failure of payments of cash dividend to the designated bank accounts due to system failure, fraud (internal or external intrusion), or any cybercrime related incidents "Force Majeure" or acts of God:

Responsibilities of RCBC in system failure, fraud (internal or external intrusion) and cybercrime related incidents

- In the event of troubles or delay on the transfer of funds on the payable date of cash dividends due to system failure, fraud (internal or external intrusion) or any cybercrime related incident, an internal investigation shall be conducted by RCBC to determine if said incidents is a result of failure on, during, or after RCBC operations. RCBC shall have three (3) days to investigate and determine if said troubles or delays is a result of RCBC operations, a third-party system (beneficiary bank) or a fraud (internal or external intrusion) or a cybercrime related incident. The liabilities of RCBC or House of Investment to the shareholder shall be determined based on the terms of the Stock Transfer, Stock Registrar and Dividend Paying Agency Agreement, including its amendments or supplemental.
- RCBC shall NOT be liable to any system failure, fraud (internal or external intrusion) or cybercrime related incidents in a third-party system (beneficiary bank).

House of Investment's funding of accounts

- House of Investment shall be liable to cover any damages or penalties from its failure to deliver or transfer funds on the payable date of cash dividends.

Third-party system (beneficiary bank)

- Successful transfer of funds to a third-party system shall no longer be the liability of RCBC but of the shareholders and its beneficiary bank.

Reports on transfer of funds and troubleshooting if RCBC electronic delivery system is unsuccessful

- In case of system failure, a check can be issued immediately if no correction can be done on the payable date of cash dividend. The shareholders shall be advised that a check shall be issued within five (5) days and to be delivered to shareholders' mailing address.
- A status report on the transfer of funds shall be provided to House of Investment within three (3) days.

Failure of cash dividend payment on the payable date due to "Force Majeure" or Acts of Nature cannot be taken against either/or RCBC, to a third-party (beneficiary bank), or House of Investment.

Liabilities on the part of shareholders and co-depositors if credited fund is a result of system failure, fraud (internal or external intrusion) and any cybercrime related incident:

- If credited funds are results of system failure, fraud or cybercrime related incident with or without the permission of shareholders and co-depositors, RCBC and House of Investment shall have the authority to recover from designated bank accounts of shareholders and co-depositors. Recovery of funds shall include any amount credited by means of system failure (erroneous, double or multiple credit entries), fraud (internal or external intrusion) or any cybercrime related incident.
- If funds (a result of system failure, fraud or cybercrime incidents) have been willingly or unwillingly withdrawn by shareholders or co-depositors, both accountholders are responsible to return the funds to RCBC.
- If shareholders and co-depositors have failed to pay or return the funds (a result of system failure, fraud or cybercrime), RCBC and House of Investment shall have the authority to hold all future cash dividends in order to recover any unreturned funds. The shareholders shall only begin to receive the cash dividends once the fund has been fully settled.

Credit posting of cash dividends to shareholders' accounts

- On the payable date of cash dividends, a cut-off and schedule of crediting of funds shall be implemented by RCBC to beneficiary banks of shareholders. If no significant AMLA findings has been found the crediting of cash dividends can be expected by shareholders on the payable date of cash dividends.

AMLA checking of funds

- All significant funds (P500,000.00 and above) credited in shareholders' designated bank accounts shall be subject to AMLA checking by the beneficiary banks. This process may result to a delay in the crediting of cash dividends. If cleared by the beneficiary bank the shareholders shall expect the crediting of cash dividends to their designated bank accounts.

That by signing this form I hereby certify that I fully understand the terms and conditions in this Cash Dividend Direct Credit Program.
